f. Fuel Dump:

A small fuel dump with a capacity of about four railroad tank cars was in the barracks area. The dump, run by Capt MATYAS, was not subordinate to the school.

2. One hundred tanks and two 82 mm guns arrived by rail at the Motor Transport Barracks on Zachstreet in late August 1949. Some of the tanks were immediately handed over to the Motor Vehicle Repair Section to be studied for future repair work. Several days later the tanks were picked up by officer candidates of the tank arm and driven away at night. The acceptance of the armored vehicles was witnessed by a tank colonel who was described as commanding officer of the ESZTERGOM (Q 48/Z 27) tank division. The colonel said that the tanks were of type T34 **

Comment:

* The Central Motor Transport Training School of the Hungarian Army was first mentioned as a drivers' school in newspaper accounts of February 1949. The data on the school's organization, etc. appears credible.

** The report confirms previous information on the delivery of Soviet tanks (type T34) to the Hungarian tank arm, primarily to the ESZTERGOM tank division, which is still believed to be in the phase of activation.

~~SECRET CONTROL/US OFFICIALS ONLY~~

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

*** Most of the reported officers are known in their positions and are thus confirmed by the report.

Maj. Gen. PORPHY was identified as Artillery Commander in PECS in early 1949.
